

THE KEYS OF ST. PETER

A PUBLICATION OF ST. PETER'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

FROM THE RECTOR'S DESK

In our Episcopal Tradition—enfolded in Scripture, the Sacraments, and the Apostolic creeds and ministries—Jesus' appearances to His disciples in the forty days between His Resurrection and Ascension have both theological and existential meaning.

The New Testament accounts describe several appearances of Jesus during this time period:

- 1. To Mary Magdalene: According to the Gospels, Jesus appeared to Mary Magdalene in the Garden near the tomb shortly after His Resurrection (John 20). In addition to revealing His counter-cultural affirmation of women as being fully His disciples (immediately afterwards by running to the disciples to share the Good News, Mary Magdalene has been described as the “evangelist to the evangelists,” “the apostle to the apostles”), this appearance anchors the New Creation Christ has come to establish in a New Garden of Eden (Genesis 2) in which He is New Adam (1 Corinthians 13) and Mary Magdalen is the New Eve, the Bride of Christ, which is a symbol of the universal Church (Revelation 21).
- 2. To the Disciples in Jerusalem: Jesus appears to his disciples in a locked room in Jerusalem (John 20). He greets them with a proclamation of peace (John 20:19) and He authorizes them as living instruments of the absolution He has come to share with the world, telling them “Whosoever sins you forgive, are forgiven.” (John 20:23) This appearance is particularly important to Thomas, who initially doubted Jesus' resurrection until he saw and touched Jesus' wounds (John 20:27), the marks of love through which God saves the world.

3. To the Disciples on the Road to Emmaus: In the Gospel of Luke, Jesus appears to two disciples on the road to Emmaus (Luke 24). Although they initially do not recognize him, during their conversation Jesus explains the Scriptures to them and finally reveals Himself when he breaks bread with them. This underscores our focus on our experience with Christ not only in Scripture but also in the blessed, broken, and shared bread of the Eucharist.
4. At the Sea of Galilee: In the Gospel of John, Jesus appears to some of his disciples while they fish on the Sea of Galilee (John 21). As He did in the beginning of His ministry with them in Galilee when He promised them that He would make them “fishers of men” (Matthew 4), Jesus coaches them on how to find a miraculously large cache of fish. He also shares a meal with his disciples which He cooks over a charcoal grill, the same kind of grill over which Peter denied Christ (John 18:18). The meal, therefore, expresses Christ’s reconciliation with Peter and all of us even at our worst moments; it also shows His provision of grace to help His disciples (which includes us) to reach out to not only save others who are lost but also to be reconciled with those who have hurt us.
5. The Great Commission: One of the most well-known appearances of Jesus after His Resurrection is His commissioning of His disciples to “go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.” (Matthew 28:16-20) He does not leave us comfortless—He promises to send us “the Comforter,” Who is God the Holy Spirit (which He will do at Pentecost or, as we call it locally, Whitsunday). On Pentecost, He does give us jobs and the grace we need to do them.

These pivotal moments in the development of the Early Church, of which we are heirs, confirm Jesus' victory over death, establish the foundation for the Church, and provide guidance for the disciples as they carry out the mission of spreading the Gospel.

More immediately, these events have existential meaning for us as individuals. While our clearest understanding of ourselves is in our relationship with others and our shared relationship with God “in whom we [all] live, and move, and have our being,” (Acts 17:28) there is room in our Tradition for what might be called Existential Christianity. In these experiences, we find:

1. Meaning: The appearances of Jesus after His Resurrection offer a profound message of hope amidst despair. Just as Jesus appeared to His disciples when they were lost in grief and confusion, believers can find meaning and purpose in their own moments of darkness and uncertainty. These appearances remind us that even in our lowest moments, there is the potential for transformation and renewal.

2. Connection: Jesus' appearances to his disciples were intimate encounters that describe our deep yearning for true connection and communion instead of the superficial or merely transactional relationships we otherwise find in our culture. These appearances encourage us to persevere in our quest for spiritual nourishment and mutual, interpersonal growth.
3. Freedom: The disciples' responses to Jesus' appearances reflect the existential struggle between fearful doubt and trust. The appearances of Jesus invite us to embrace our existential freedom—in the face of every kind of fear, failure, solitude, or uncertainty, God offers us the grace to find the freedom to choose faith, hope, and love.
4. Acceptance and Victory over Death: Jesus' Resurrection appearances confront and overcome our ultimate existential dilemma: the reality of death. Through His triumph over death, Jesus offers believers a profound reassurance—death is not the end, but a doorway to new life. This existential truth invites us to confront our fear of mortality and live with courage and purpose, knowing that our lives are ultimately held in the hands of a loving and eternal God Who loves us so much that He has died for us and therefore has already gone where we one day must go.
5. Identity and Purpose: Just as Jesus commissioned and empowered His disciples, Jesus commissions and empowers us to discover our own identity and purpose in light of the Resurrection. God has given us unique gifts and talents—just like every other person we have ever met. We honor His gifts in us and others and we commend ourselves and each other to the ongoing grace and invitation to see and share the redemption and transformation of the world initiated and accomplished by Christ.

Easter, of course, is an historic event. It actually happened. At the same time, His Resurrection is still happening around and within us all the time. Through His Incarnation, Passion, Resurrection, and Ascension, Christ is God's Eternity transfixed in our time—our ever-present hope in our ever-present need until we see Him and surrender our needs and hopes to His love.
